

March 31, 1998

Dear Mr. Lennox,

Thank you so much for coming in and talking about space. I learned a lot of things I did not know. One of the things I learned is that the food the astronauts eat is bite size so that the crumbs can't fly in the air. If they did they might get stuck in an instrument. Another thing that I learned is that when the astronauts come close to the moon, one person goes into one part of the rocket and they separate from the other people who are different part of the rocket. I really enjoyed listening to you talk to us. Thanks again.

Yours Truly,

Breanne M. Lupo